about the book this series of christian devotional messages letters to god contains messages written from a personal standpoint any who are seeking to know god better might find them helpful and perhaps challenging it is perhaps unique due to the perspective from which the individual messages are written personal in having originally delivered the typically brief messages in text form early in the morning author william bean s hope was that the recipients who might not otherwise would have exposure to god as they begin their day as you enjoy these devotionals may you be drawn closer to god about the author from a young age william bean always desired to write a book although he never anticipated it would come in the form of this work he became a follower of christ in his mid thirties and has since become a devoted faithful student of god s word he enjoys sharing his discoveries from within god s word through teaching in his local church and he serves in various capacities within it william is a husband father and grandfather but first and foremost he is a deeply devoted disciple of jesus christ he is not a pastor but does consider himself to be a minister of the word of god domestic devotion has become an increasingly important area of research in recent years with the publication of a number of significant studies on the early modern period in particular this special issue aims to build on these works and to expand their range both geographically and chronologically this collection focuses on lived religion and the devotional practices found in the domestic settings of late medieval and early modern europe more particularly it investigates the degree to which the experience of personal or familial religious practice in the domestic realm intersected with the more public expression of faith in liturgical or communal settings its broad geographical range spanning northern southern central and eastern europe includes practices related to christianity judaism and islam this special issue will be of interest to historians art historians medievalists early modernists historians of religion anthropologists and theologians as well as those interested in the history of material religious culture it also offers important insights into research areas such as gender studies histories of the emotions and histories of the senses for generations american catholics lived out their faith through countless unremarkable routines deep questions of theology usually meant little to them but parishioners clung to deeply ingrained habits of devotion both public and private particular devotions changed over time waxing or waning in popularity but the habits endured going to mass on sunday saying prayers privately and teaching their children to do the same filling their homes with crucifixes and other religious images participating in special services blending the church s calendar of feast and fast days with the secular cycles of work and citizenship negotiating their conformity or not to the church s demands regarding sexual behavior and even diet it was religious practice carried out in daily and weekly observance that embodied their faith more than any abstract set of dogmas from the introduction in habits of devotion four senior scholars take the measure of the central religious practices and devotions that by the middle of the twentieth century defined the ordinary week to week religion of the majority of american catholics their essays investigate prayer devotion to mary confession and the eucharist as practiced by catholics in the united states before and shortly after the second vatican council imagining the woman reader in the age of dante brings to light a new character in medieval literature that of the woman reader and interlocutor it does so by establishing a dialogue between literary studies gender studies the history of literacy and the material culture of the book in medieval times from guittone d arezzo s piercing critic the villainous woman to the mysterious lady who bids guido cavalcanti to write his grand philosophical song to dante s female co editors in the vita nova and his great characters of female readers such as francesca and beatrice in the comedy all the way to boccaccio s overtly female audience this particular interlocutor appears to be central to the construct of textuality and the construction of literary authority this volume explores the figure of the woman reader by contextualizing her within the history of female literacy the material culture of the book and the ways in which writers and poets of earlier traditions imagined her it argues that these figures are not mere veneers between a male author and a real male readership but that although fictional they bring several advantages to their vernacular authors such as orality the mother tongue the recollection of the delights of early education literacy freedom in interpretation absence of teleology the beauties of ornamentation and amplification a reduced preoccupation with the fixity of the text the pleasure of making mistakes dialogue with the other the extension of desire original simplicity and new and more flexible forms of authority
